

What national patent documents does your system cover (eg., does it search JP and Chinese patent documents)?

IPscreener mines the global patent portfolio of about 56 million patent families and creates a representative subset in view of the content. Thus, we mirror the collection in view of the content but not explicitly by having every document represented. A part of the performance lies in that the algorithm selects a representative subset mirroring the global patent data collections from a content view.